Just in case you needed a respite from all the covid-19 craziness we are currently dealing with, it is important that we focus on something that needs our attention i.e. the completion of our 2020 census forms. My article this month deals with why the Torah requires the newly freed Children of Israel to take a census of the mixed multitude of their masses. Hope you enjoy the respite and the change of pace. Stay well. Arlene and Rabbi Kane

Since the 2nd night of Pesah, we have been counting the days of the Omer and just before we celebrate the Festival of Shavuot, we finish that counting. It is no accident that every year, before the Festival of Shavuot, we read Parsahat B'midbar - with its counting of the census of the Children of Israel who were freed from slavery in Egypt. Hashem commands Moshe to “take a head count of the entire community of the Children of Israel [Numbers 1:2] According to the Torah, the number of people that were counted was 603,550 [Numbers 1:46]. Having left Egypt, crossed the sea, encamped in the wilderness, received the Torah at Mount Sinai, and built the tabernacle, Israel was now ready to begin their journey home. But before they could embark on this journey it was important to count the nation for military and demographic reasons. It was a little like leaving on a bus trip with a group of kids. Before you leave, you have the participants count off so that you know how many people should be present at each stop along the way.

603,550: That's a whole lot of people! But, in fact, the number was even larger. That only accounts for the males over 20 years of age who were fit to become a fighting force. If you are planning a conquest, it is important to know how many people can serve in the military. 603,550 does not take into account women and children. All told, there had to be at least two million Israelites in the wilderness if we take the Torah at its word. That is a lot of people to feed when you are in the middle of nowhere, even if God does provide three meals daily. As a result, Bible scholars have argued that this figure cannot be correct or at the very least, that it is imprecise. Some argue that the Hebrew word eleph derived from - aleph the first letter of the Hebrew alphabet - must have another meaning. They suggest that it doesn't mean 'a thousand' but is a military term for a unit of five or six soldiers; in other words, there weren't six hundred thousand Israelites of drafting age, but six hundred units of Israelites of drafting age. But these numbers become even more mysterious when we explore their significance. According to the Zohar, a thirteenth century mystical work, the six hundred thousand Israelites of drafting age correspond to the letters in the Torah. This was also the number of people who stood at Mount Sinai when the people of Israel received the Torah. So, the Israelites not only received the Torah – each person had a letter in the Torah. Since, according to tradition, we were all present at Mount Sinai each of us must have a letter in the Torah as well. This is a powerful idea – the idea that each of us has our own special letter in the Torah. Some mystics also claim that the name Yisrael is an acronym for Yesh Shishim Ribo Otot LaTorah, “There are six hundred thousand letters in the Torah!”

There is only one problem with this: It is not true! In reality, there are only 304,805 letters in the Torah. We must wonder: How could the author of the Zohar get it so wrong? How is it that later scholars were not troubled by the difference between the number of letters they claimed the Torah contains and the number it actually has? There can be no question that they knew exactly how many letters there were in the Torah. Long before computers, our ancestors were busy counting chapters, words and even letters. They missed nothing in their analysis of the Torah. And even if we take into account haser and malei, shortened and full spellings of Hebrew words, surely, they knew that the Torah would have to be twice as long for it to have 600,000 letters. So, what were they getting at?

The sages never expected us to literally take them at their word when they said that there were six hundred thousand letters in the Torah. The truth is they were not that interested in counting the letters. They were trying to say that when it comes to Torah every Jew counts. By itself, the Torah is just a scroll. Unread, it does not matter how many letters or words it contains, or what lessons it can teach us. It only becomes a living and dynamic document when we add ourselves to the equation, when we become part of the Torah.

That is why the expression that is used to describe the counting of the Israelites in today's parshah is si'u et rosh, literally “lift up the heads.” But maybe it is something more: to lift the head is a way of saying, confer dignity and meaning on each person. Every Jew is part of the Torah just as every letter is essential to the Torah. This is the goal of every congregation: to lift up its members. To make them feel that they are part of this ancient scheme of things and part our grand tradition. The Torah does not have meaning without the people of Israel, and the Jewish people cannot exist without the Torah. Each of us is the missing link in the Torah; we transform theory into reality, and lessons into living. So, play with the letters all you want and count them backwards and forwards. Just remember: the Torah is a living document.

The Zohar says: “God, Torah, and Israel are one.” These are the three legs of a stool. If you remove any one of its legs, the stool will topple over. It does not matter how you read it or with whom you read. What counts is how you read yourself into it. Judaism is defined not by these three elements separately but by the dynamic interaction between them. As we prepare for Shavuot, at the end of the month of May, we ought to take the time not only to count the letters of the Torah but to count ourselves into the Torah as well. How do you translate and interpret your word of Torah? How can you give it meaning? And how will you use it to celebrate and rejoice in our heritage?

We are physically separated from each other, which is akin to losing a leg of the stool, but we are not toppling over because we have faith that we will endure.

A Special Request

Yes, Passover has ended for this year. An especially trying time, and even more making the special dishes we all enjoy. Some of us are not the master chefs that many of us are. For that reason we ask if you have wonderful recipes for the Passover that you would share them with us.

Please send them to Brucetchr@aol.com.

Thank you!

President's Message May 2020

We learn something important from each experience. The “Pause in Place” necessitated by the COVID-19 pandemic has taught us that community doesn't have to be a physical setting. The sense of belonging, the expression of caring and compassion continues without a physical or in person opportunity. We have all been touched by the devastation of COVID 19, and our Madison community continues to share its strength to help us each through the hard times, as we valiantly try to focus on good times to come.

MJC continues to hold services through ZOOM, and each week, more and more members join with us. MJC is very proud and pleased to invite you to our ZOOM supported Friday night services @ 7:30PM. Barriers to participation in services have crumbled; accessibility, transportation and weather are no longer problematic. If we were holding services in the small schule it would be standing room only! If you haven't yet joined us for Friday Night Services, click the link in the weekly email to instantly be transported to participate in the beautiful traditions of Kabbalah Shabbat.

We have never been more “connected.” While it is true that we can't plan very far ahead, Shavuot will be here in a few weeks, and plans for ZOOM supported holiday services and Yizkor are underway.

Please remember to share the good things that happen and take the time to experience happiness and joy.

The Latest from Sisterhood May 2020

The month of May is upon us and we usually look forward to the annual Fashion Show. Unfortunately, we will not be able to conduct the Fashion show this May as usual, nor schedule an actual end year dinner in June. However, there are many other ways to interact at this time and Sisterhood will continue for the next 2-3 months to plan virtual meetings and activities. In this way we will still be there for each other, even just to say hello. The new normal involves distancing and telecommunication that may be challenging, but we will get through it. After this situation resolves, we will emerge stronger and certainly have developed a lot of creativity. We even learned to celebrate Pesach virtually this year! Furthermore, we will remember the good that came out of this simply that others care: many members have reached out either through calls, texts or assisting others.

Unfortunately, most of us know of someone who has either had the disease or succumbed to it. Sadly we lost our dear and longtime member Sheila from the disease on April 15th. Her husband Bert passed one week prior to her from a long-standing illness. Sheila served as a past Sisterhood president and was on the Fundraising committee for many, many years. They will both be missed.

So please reach out and feel free to call us even if just to talk. Sisterhood will be glad to help. If there is any time more important to show support, then this is the time. Look out for email notifications concerning upcoming meetings; we are open to ideas and suggestions.

Wishing everyone to be safe and well.

MJC SOCIAL CLUB HAPPENINGS

May 2020

I hope everyone is dealing with this terrible situation in the best way possible. We may not be physically seeing each other but we can still communicate by telephone, text, email, Skype, Facetime or ZOOM. With the world on pause, we can still try to be together and not feel so alone. The MJC family is always there for anyone that needs anything. I hope these very hard times will bring us closer and make us even stronger.

Please try to join us virtually every Friday evening for services with Rabbi Kane. We will also try to keep in touch by having other meetings as well. Check your email for further information and invitations.

My thoughts and prayers are for everyone to be healthy and safe during this very trying time.

Israel Update #4

In consultation with Quentin travel I have officially postponed the October trip to Israel.

We hope that there will be a vaccine/cure in the not too distant future. We can then see a safer, healthy world in which our normal lives and travel will begin again.

Until then stay safe and healthy .

The Yiddish Book Center presents:

AUTHOR TALK: The Dairy Restaurant with Ben Katchor

Thursday, April 30, at 7 p.m. EST: a captivating and utterly original program, streamed live to your own home!

Ben Katchor's latest book, The Dairy Restaurant, reimagines the history of Jewish eating by examining the events and ideas that led to the proliferation of the dairy restaurant in New York City. Illuminated by his distinctive illustrations, it includes classified ads, matchbooks, menus, and listings from the phone book. The book ends on an elegiac note, as Katchor recalls his own experiences in many of these iconic eateries, before they disappeared from New York. Winner of a MacArthur "Genius Grant," Katchor will share stories and images from the book in this live presentation for the Yiddish Book Center.
